TRADE AT HOME.

The first essential for a vigorous patriotism is consistent loyalty to your home town.

If your dollars are spent at home your home town and district will eventually get the benefit of them. But if you spend your money in other towns your town not only loses but you lose in the long run, because, if the town does not get your money, if the dollars you spend it will be a dead place to live in and if you own any property in the town or district it is bound to depreciate in value because your town merchants are not prospering.

It is a self evident fact that if the business man of a community is not prospering your town can not prosper. They cannot pay wages and lose money.

It is the amount of business transacted in your community that regulates the value of your property.

If you must trade with the big catalogue houses you should move to the town where they are located and get your wages in that city.

When you need credit you are compelled to ask home merchants for it, but when you buy your necessities in another town or from a catalogue house you are compelled to pay cash before you get the goods.

Loyalty to a town will never harm it but the lack of it has killed many a promising place.

COMPETITION IN PURCHASING FOOD.

When Mr. Horbert Hoover addressed the Consumers' Council recently at the offices of the British Ministry of Food in London, England, he pointed out that competition amongst the Allied countries in purchasing food supplies on this continent had been arrested. Such competition was responsible in no small measure for the rapid advance of food prices in Canada and the United States and prices would certainly have gone much higher had it not been for the combined action of the British Ministry of Food, the United States Food Administration and the Canada Food Board, in grappling with the problem and so organizing the purchasing of food supplies for overseas as to eliminate competition amongst the allied buyers. In bringing about such organization the Canada Food Board had an important part.

But while there no longer is unrestrained competition in purchases of food supplies for overseas, the cost of production of agricultural produce of all kinds is very high and this accounts, in large measure at least, for the high prices which have been rendered necessary in order to maintain and to increase production under adverse war conditions. The most important question of all is that of stimulating production and any possibility of reduction of supplies must not be entertained, because of the huge requirements overseas, the dependence of the Allies upon North America for so large a proportion of their food, and the military and economic importances of building up large reserves, both here and abroad. As Mr. Hoover has said, discontent over prices is a little compared with discontent over hunger, which might have been our lot, except for the Providence which placed us on this side of the Atlantic. The Canada Food Board, by its license control over dealers in food and by regulations affecting the availability of foodstuffs, has already done much to eliminate profiteering from the wholesale trade and to check trade practices which have been to the disadvantage of both the producer and the consumer. The Food Board asks the people of Canada to lend their support to the effort the Board is making to keep prices to as low a level as is consistent with the obligation of supplying the food needed by our Allies. This can best be done by an intelligent study of the food problem in all its phases.

GOOD CITIZENSHIP.

Has it ever occurred to the majority that these priceless things—ideals of liberty and justice and right living—can be neither bought nor sold? They are not heirlooms and no parent can hand them down ticketed and tied like government bonds or enclosed, like jewels, in a strong box. They can be "recommended" and even insisted upon but are adopted voluntarily or not at all.

These facts offer food for serious thought on the part of those who are responsible for Canada's future. Whatever ideals it is desirable for the citizens of tomorrow to possess must be instilled into the consciousness of the children of today. The process is the tedious one of "line upon line, precept upon precept, here a little, there a little"—a process at times inspiring but more often than not discouraging. It is a process little realized in the main because its workings are unseen. None until the generation stands ready for citizenship can it be seen that flame has been done. Only then is one aware of the existence of the harmful influence. Human careers are too precious to be submitted to this exploitation and the most serious duty confronting patriots today is the provision of influences that will produce high standards of living for generations to come.

Had this truth been recognized from any other than a largely theoretical standpoint by the men and women of the preceding and the present generation it would not have been possible for the vicious theories promulgated by Frederick the Great (wrongly so called) to be working themselves out today in Prussian atrocities. There can not be too vigorous pushing of baby welfare movements or the establishment and maintenance of supervised playgrounds. By Scout movements, national health boards, carefully considered housing schemes, city planning and every other movement that centres in the cleanest, finest living. An examination into the things in which all were keenly concerned a decade ago will not result in a list of these things as national interest. Every one of them must be absorbing interests if Prussianism is to be stamped out forever.

The city of Edmonton is having her tax troubles along with other cities and towns in the west. Some drastic action will have to be taken by these cities and towns if the ratepayers do not pay their taxes in the near future. Municipal debts must be paid and municipal or provincial officers will be compelled to proceed against the property owners the same as any common debtor if they do not come forward with the tax money.

The rains of last Thursday and Saturday have made it unnecessary to use any more town water this year to water gardens with, and anyone who uses any town water for that purpose again knows very little about gardening. Potatoes and other vegetables should now be given a chance to mature.

Sinkings Slowly
But Surely Decrease

The following are the July incantile losses, all gross tons:
British, 176,479; allied and neutral, 166,632. Total, 343,071.

Compared with the adjusted June losses, these figures show a British increase of 10,365 tons and an allied and neutral increase of 25,582 tons.

Compared with the adjusted May losses, they show a British decrease of 55,301 and an allied and neutral increase of 3,829 tons.

Compared with July, 1917, the combined British, allied and neutral decrease is 262,938 tons.

The British losses during July exceeded building figures in the British shipping yards by 34,531 tons. But during the same month a total of 12,330 tons was completed on British accounts, reducing the July deficit to 22,201 tons, as compared with the average six monthly deficit of this year of nearly 30,000 tons.

The sailings to and from Great Britain during July were more numerous than ever, being 7,718,898 gross tons for steamships, exceeding 300 tons, representing an increase of 288,512, compared with June.

CANNING DON'T'S.

Don't start canning until you have the right appliances.

Don't use old screw tops. Buy new ones.

Don't use old rubbers. New ones are the cheaper than allowing fruit to spoil.

Don't use two-quart jars. Use quart size. Pint size is best for a family of not over five members.

Don't neglect cleanliness—clean person, clean room, clean appliances, clean work. Cleanliness counts fifty per cent.

Don't plan to can more than three to six jars of fruit or vegetable the first day. Speed up gradually.

Don't assume that the water surrounding the jars will keep boiling without attention to fuel. The right temperature must be maintained for success.

Don't mistake simmering water for boiling water. It was boiling just a minute ago—it doesn't meet the requirement of boiling water at the moment of using.

Seven enemy aliens, inmates of the prison camp at Fort Douglas, Utah, were shot by a guard this morning after they had refused to obey an order to disperse and had attacked the guard with stones and other missiles. One of the prisoners was wounded severely, it was said, but the hurts of the latest war minor. The guard's gun was loaded with buckshot.

A tunnel dug by prisoners under one of the buildings was discovered Tuesday night. The inmates of the prison, who had been in a surly mood ever since, early today gathered outside their barracks and began to give the guard, also to pelt him with stones.

After repeated orders to the prisoners to disperse were unheeded, the guard fired.

The names of the prisoners wounded will not be made public until a detailed report of the matter is submitted to Washington, and such information as the committee on public information deems is proper, officially given out.

The bill providing for the election of a king of Finland was rejected on the third reading in the Finnish diet because it failed to receive the necessary five-sixths majority vote, according to a telegram from Helsinki to the North German Gazette of Berlin.

Enemy Gives way
Along Whole Line

Whether it be because the men's fighting spirits are gone or because the higher command is deliberately following a program involving retirement wherever they are routed, the British are finding that on various parts of their line that Germans give way with an unexpected readiness that is like shadow fighting at times.

All withdrawals so far have been executed by the Germans, as a device to shorten their line, inasmuch as this has been the actual effect. In some instances thought, it has left the Germans in less satisfactory positions than those abandoned.

SHOWING THE DIFFERENCE.

Italian aviators flew over the Alps in treacherous currents of air, have avoided enemy guns, descended low over Vienna, the capital of Austria, and dropped—what? Not bombs, but manifestos. The then new Kaiser, named, beset by various perils to life and limb, but unharmed.

This aviator, a German aviator, using up motor power, gave and dropped a series of leaflets as easily drop deadly bombs.

Holloweaters here take no chance of this kind without destructive bombs. They are not on mere airplane flights and are able to navigate better, unencumbered by munitions.

For them the military adventure carried out by these Italian aviators would be a waste of effort and a virtually useless risk.

The story of this flight to Vienna and back is only a variant of what has been said and done to show the difference between the Teuton war spirit and that of the Allies. It is that the Teuton which has fastened indelibly upon German armies the sobriquet "Huns." It is that distinction which placed Germany, Great Britain, the United States and other powers into the war against the Teutons.

The Italian aviators may be back to Vienna later with bombs. If they do, they will seek to destroy not churches, hospitals and schools, but railway stations, war-industrial plants and the like. They will not women and children, but enemy soldiers—Munich Tribune.

Relief Ship Lifeboats Shelled

A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company from Copenhagen, says the Dutch steamer Gasconier, operated by the Belgian relief commission, reporting as having struck a mine, was fired upon by a German submarine which also bombarded the lifeboats, one of which was destroyed. Several of the seamen were wounded. The dispatch adds that Dutch sailors made heroic attempts to save their comrades, but that the first mate and five seamen, who were wounded, were drowned. The steamer sank in 20 minutes.

SUGAR SAVING IMPERATIVE

The Canada Food Board has asked private householders of Canada to further restrict their consumption of sugar for personal use to 1½ pounds per month per person and to use a greater proportion of brown sugar. The board also warns against hoarding as fair, unnecessary and contrary to the law.

The Cuban crop of sugar has fallen short by 500,000 tons of the previous estimate; the American sugar beet crop has also proved disappointing as has the Louisiana cane crop. The recent German drive was a further cause of sugar shortage as a large base acreage was overrun and many sugar factories destroyed. Thousands of tons of sugar have been sunk by submarines, including a 50,000 ton cargo recently lost off the Atlantic coast. Conservation of sugar is imperative. There is sugar in Canada for everybody in moderation but none for extravagant use, for wasteful use or for illegal hoarding.
